Rapido is pleased to announce the Magor 54' DODX Flatcar in HO Scale!

At the height of the Korean War, the US army required a new fleet of rolling stock to transport military hardware across the nation on any railroad. Notably, a large order for 650 cars was placed with the Magor Car Corporation to handle the heavier and larger tanks and other military equipment of the era. Delivered between April and July 1953, the Magor fleet came in at 54' and weighed in at around 36 tons with a 100-ton load carrying capacity. Features included a wood deck and heavy steel frame construction along with 6-wheel buckeye trucks.

As higher capacity equipment entered service in the 1980s, these burly cars would largely be withdrawn from service around 1990 with the last of the fleet being decommissioned at the end of the Gulf war in 1991. Due to their sturdy construction, many were sold to Amtrak where they remain in maintenance-of-way service today! Many others have also been preserved in museums.

For a detailed history of these cars, check out the DODX Flatcar page on our website.

The Rapido 54' Magor DODX Flatcar features:

- Drawn from original blueprints, measurements and 3D scans
- Fully-detailed underframe including piping and equipment
- Correct Buckeye 3-axle trucks with incredible detail
- Metal knuckle couplers
- Simulated wood deck design
- M60A1 Tank and 5-inch/54-caliber Mark 42 gun loads, sold separately
- Trucks have friction bearings or retrofitted roller bearings as appropriate

HO Scale M60A1 Tank

Entering development in 1960, the M60A1 battle tank would prove to be an integral part of the US military's arsenal and was produced in several variants. Production numbers for the M60A1 would total nearly 8000 units before being production ended in 1980. It has seen use widely for nearly 30 years. These tanks would be retired by the US military during the 1990s with the end of the Cold War. Many, however, would be resold to other countries for continued service with many variants still in service as of 2024. These tanks would generally be loaded in pairs on the DODX's fleet of Magor Heavy Duty DODX Flatcars and could be seen on the rails all across the USA.

For a detailed history of these cars, check out the DODX Flatcar page on our website.

HO Scale 5-inch/54-caliber Mark 42 gun

Developed in the 1950s by the US Navy to replace outdated WWII-era gun mounts, the 5-inch/54-caliber Mark 42 gun mount would be used on several classes of USN ships into the 1970s, until being replaced with more modern mounts beginning in 1971. First installed on the USS Northampton, these would see use on a range of ships in the fleet including Forrestal-class aircraft carriers, as well as a number of cruisers, destroyers and frigates. While most of these ships were phased out in the 1990s by the USN, many would be sold off to other countries for continued service into the 21st century. Other countries including Germany and Japan would also use the Mark 42 on their new ships constructed in the 1960s and 70s. Often these mounts could be seen in transit on the Magor Heavy Duty DODX Flatcars heading to ports for shipment overseas.
